Significant Benefits of Positive Parenting Support Programs

March 2025 | Elisha Lee, UNC- Chapel Hill MSW Student; National Initiative for Trauma Education and Workforce Development (NITEWD) Intern; & National Prevention Science Coalition to Improve Lives (NPSC) Intern

What Does the Research Tell Us?

Evidence-based Parenting Programs have been shown to promote positive outcomes for children and youth by providing families with the support they need to nurture their social, emotional, and behavioral health.

Adverse Childhood Experiences (ACEs)

Frequent or prolonged exposure to ACEs has the potential to change the development of a child's brain and physiology, especially if that child lacks protective and supportive adults in their life to buffer the stress (Shonkoff et al., 2012).

COST BENEFIT ANALYSIS

Parenting Support Program	Benefits minus costs (net present value)	Benefit > Cost Ratio	Chance benefits will exceed costs
Positive Parenting Program - Level 4	$4,358	na	97%
Triple P- Positive Parenting Program (System)	$2,789	$8.87	71%
Strengthening Families for Parents and Youth 10-14	$3,344	$5.94	60%
Incredible Years Parent Training	$8,698	$6.28	59%
Parent-Child Interaction Therapy (PCIT) for families in the child welfare system	$32,936	$17.46	95%
Brief Intervention in Emergency Department (SBIRT)	$2418	$5.56	60%
Multisystemic Therapy (MST) for Court-involved/ Post-Release Youth	$19,768	$3.01	99%

Are ACEs Preventable or Reversible?

YES!

Through Parenting Support Programs.

PPSP & Medicaid

Medicaid often bears the financial burden of treating chronic conditions, mental health issues, and other long-term health problems that can be prevented.

By intervening early and supporting parents in their ability to care for their children, positive parenting programs can have lasting effects on children's well-being. Healthier children, who are less likely to develop chronic health issues, result in reduced lifetime healthcare costs.

Medicaid expansion in many states provides for behavioral health services; however, currently, parenting programs are not often covered.
